

Kai Dunker, Lead Economist, Global Gas Markets, BP PLC

Kai Dunker joined BP's Group Economics team in 2012 where, as the Lead Economist for Global markets, he provides the Team's gas market analysis on a global as well as regional level. In this capacity, Kai has contributed to the 'BP Statistical Review of World Energy June 2012' and the 'BP 2030 Energy Outlook 2013'. Prior to joining BP, Kai worked in various academic positions at Heriot-Watt University, including two years as a research assistant for the BP Statistical Review. He is also currently in the final stages of completing his PhD in Economics, for which his research focuses on international macroeconomics and monetary unions, with a particular emphasis on applied econometrics.