

Gavin Doyle, Principle Telecommunications Consultant, ABB Ltd

Gavin Doyle is a Principal Telecommunications Consultant for ABB's Chemical, Oil and Gas business which delivers fully engineered solutions and supporting services for telecoms, process control, safety, instrumentation and electrification, globally.

Gavin's telecoms career started with Cable and Wireless as a graduate engineer, he subsequently specialised in Submarine Telecoms Cable Systems, becoming a Co-Chair of the Sub-Optic Industry Conference papers committee. Gavin joined ABB Oil and Gas Telecoms in 2014.

Gavin is a Chartered Engineer, Member of the Institution of Engineering and Technology and has a degree in Electronics and Communications Engineering. He has been involved in engineering since the start of his career as an apprentice for Cosworth Racing, working with F1, WRC and Indycar race engine electronics.